

FOUND AFTER YEARS.

Little Leslie McCune Kidnapped by Her Father's Relatives.

THE ANXIOUS SEARCH OF A MOTHER.

In Ohio the Child, Almost Grown to Womanhood, Has Been Estranged from Her Parent—Two Indictments Secured—One for Margaretta Fulton, of Portsmouth, Ohio, With Whom Leslie Now Is.

New York, Oct. 16.—"I want my daughter whom I haven't seen for almost five years. But I also want to punish the persons who stole her from me," said Mrs. Elizabeth McCune, of No. 113 East Fifty-ninth street.

The first step in securing the latter desire has revived a sensational kidnapping case that for five years had been lost to the public eye.

Mrs. Elizabeth McCune and her eleven-year-old daughter Leslie were living at No. 76 East Eleventh street during the month of March, 1888. Mrs. McCune was a widow, and supported herself and child by giving music and singing lessons. She had been on the operative stage under the name of Marie Burton, and in the role of Kaitiana in the "Mikado," Ganymede in "Galatea," and Little Buttercup in "Pinafore" had won little distinction.

She sent the child to the grocery store one evening. After ten minutes had elapsed and little Leslie did not return Mrs. McCune became uneasy. She went to the door and looked up and down the street. Leslie was not to be seen. The frightened mother hurried to the grocery where the child had gone. The shopman had not seen her.

Mrs. McCune has not laid eyes upon her daughter since.

STRIPPED OUT OF HER MOTHER'S LIFE.

She supposed at first that the child was lost, and sent messengers to the police stations, but while some lost children were found, not was brown eyed and curly haired Leslie. In that trip to the grocery store she had stepped out of her mother's life as though death had intervened. Mrs. McCune lost no time or opportunity in the hunt for her offspring. Her mother, Mrs. Culbertson, made many weary trips to the west in the quest, for it was from Ohio the McCune family came, and previous incidents made Mrs. McCune suspect that some of her deceased husband's relatives were responsible for the child's disappearance.

Walter S. McCune, the dead husband, had been an attorney in Ironton, Ohio, where he met and married his wife. Her friends say that his habits were bad, and domestic infelicity reached the point where the wife demanded a separation.

His relatives opposed the step, but it was finally taken and the child went with the mother. Subsequently the unhappy parted pair made an arrangement whereby the child was given in his care. He was living with his relatives, who seemed to grow fond of Leslie. When he died Mrs. McCune heard of the fact and immediately went to Ironton to secure the little girl. She was successful and came to New York, where she engaged in the business of music teacher.

HEARD OF HER FROM OHIO.

Mrs. Margaretta Fulton, sister of the dead husband, disapproved of the child remaining in care of the mother, as did another sister, Mrs. James Bradley, whose husband was then health officer of Allegheny City, Pa., and who still holds a municipal position in that city. It was two months after Mrs. McCune returned with Leslie from the funeral that the child disappeared.

The mother, who was still supporting herself through the medium of her vocal art, heard last July that the child, now budding into womanhood, was with the Fulton family in Portsmouth, O. Mrs. Culbertson, the grandmother, went hastily to Portsmouth, and one day saw Leslie in the street. But it was for a few minutes only, and after that all access to the child was denied the old lady.

Investigations were set on foot, and some time ago James Bradley and Margaretta Fulton were indicted by the grand jury of New York on a charge of kidnapping the child. Mrs. McCune, through her counsel, John B. Mayo, of No. 320 Broadway, had submitted sufficient evidence to the district attorney to secure that result.

She had found the witness who had been lacking, and who alleges that James Bradley and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Fulton, had learned Mrs. McCune's residence in New York city, and on coming here awaited the opportunity, and when the child emerged from the house alone accosted her.

Leslie recognized her aunt and unsuspectingly accompanied her. The presumption is they all left for the west that night.

CONSIDERED BY THREE GOVERNORS.

Governor Flower granted the requisition papers in the case of both Mr. Bradley and Mrs. Fulton. Governor Pattison, of Pennsylvania, honored the papers presented to him, and word was received yesterday by Mrs. McCune that the detective sent for Bradley had apprehended him.

Governor McKinley, of Ohio, declined to grant the extradition in the case of Mrs. Fulton without an argument, which is expected to be held within the next ten days.

A reporter saw Mrs. McCune in her comfortable home last night. In speaking of her child her emotions almost overcame her.

"Their motives for taking the child away?" she repeated in answer to an inquiry. "The members of the McCune family disapproved of my separating from my husband, but I was justified in taking that step. They liked the child. Mrs. Fulton, who is childless, was especially fond of her. They learned to dislike me, and for these simple reasons they deprived me of Leslie."

"She and I were happy together. She could have had all the advantages of a good education. I had already begun to teach her music and her youthful voice promised an exceedingly fine one with cultivation. But her mind has been poisoned against me. Day by day she has been told that I am everything but what I am."

"I suppose she is dead to me, for she is a big girl, almost a young woman, now, and absorbing the daily lesson she has been taught she cannot be expected to understand a mother's love or to feel a daughter's dutiful affection."

WHO DID THE KIDNAPPING?

"As for the kidnapping," and Mrs. McCune's slight frame became rigid with indignation, "I have Mr. Bradley's own admission, in black and white, and on the letter head of the mayor's office of Allegheny City, that he did come here and take the child away."

"I believe that this case may make Leslie reflect. It will call her attention to the unnatural situation—a mother able and anxious to rear her child and the child, with an aunt who cannot give her better advantages than can I, and who certainly cannot love more than I do."

"Possibly when she grows a little older she may assert her feeling and insist upon returning to me. I want her to come and see me as I am, and I am sure she will not leave me."

Mrs. McCune was in tears and unable to continue.

Attorney John B. Mayo last night, when questioned as to the statement that James Bradley had been arrested in Allegheny City, admitted having heard that such was the case.

CHILDREN'S WEEK

At the World's Fair Opens Auspiciously. Thousands of Youngsters at the Show.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Paid admissions at the fair yesterday were 81,789. To-day began children's week at the fair. It was a beautiful, clear, warm day for the youngsters. Not only did nature smile at them, but their activity and bright faces caused more than one staid person to stop and beam on them. The little ones were everywhere.

Thousands upon thousands of the little ones swarmed through the gates. The schools of the city were all closed and will be for the rest of the week. A number of philanthropic citizens and business firms provided special trains and wagon transportation for the pupils of various schools to the fair. Many thousands of tickets were given them by others and the school teachers presented the tickets to their classes. One wholesale baker provided any amount of sandwiches and pies free for the children, so they had about everything they needed to make their day happy without expense.

The school exhibits of different states and institutions were made central visiting points.

The new liberty bell was rung at noon, the school children and their teachers taking part in the exercises. The plaza west of the administration building was covered with a throng of youngsters. The exercises were under the direction of Miss Lute Gordon, of Atlanta, Ga. A number of World's Fair officials made short addresses to the boys and girls.

Won't Visit the Fair.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—It seems now certain that the President and Mrs. Cleveland will not visit the World's Fair before its close, as it was hoped they would. A few days ago President Higginbotham, of the exposition company, wrote a letter to the President, cordially and earnestly urging him and Mrs. Cleveland to attend, but the President in a letter sent Mr. Higginbotham on Saturday announced that he was unable to leave the city at this time.

A SERIOUS WRECK.

Two Men Killed and Several Seriously Injured.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 16.—A Republic Topeka, Kas., special says: Yesterday morning the regular Denver & Rock Island train collided with a freight train near Paxico, twenty miles west of Topeka. Two colored tramps who were stealing a ride on the platform of the baggage car were killed. E. E. Harter, the mail agent, jumped and sustained serious injuries about the head. Chas. Toppin, of Kansas City, the engineer of the passenger train, made a jump for life, but sustained fractures of the skull from which he will die. Baggage Master Forsythe, of Kansas City, is injured internally and his recovery is doubtful. His car was smashed into splinters.

Assistant Superintendent Boers says the wreck was the result of a failure by the passenger crew to observe train orders.

A BRUTAL HUSBAND

Murderously Assaults His Wife Under Peculiarly Sad Circumstances.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 16.—Half an hour after giving birth to a child, Mr. Garrett Manley, wife of a plasterer of this city, was brutally assaulted by her alleged jealous husband. Manley used a table fork as the instrument of his murderous assault, driving the tines deep into the woman's left temple. He then pulled her out of bed and kicked and otherwise maltreated her before he was driven off. He was subsequently arrested on a charge of attempted murder.

The injured woman may not recover. Manley denied the parentage of the child and charged his wife with infidelity.

Central American Notes.

New York, Oct. 16.—The Herald's San Jose dispatch says: President Rodriguez and his cabinet will hear the arguments in the case of Francis H. Weeks, the New York embezzler, on the question of his extradition to the United States today. Weeks is plainly showing the strain of the long suspense and is less cheerful than formerly. He hopes that a decision in his case will be rendered soon and relieve him of the fearful anxiety under which he is now laboring.

Minister Baker will go to Salvador after the decision in the Weeks case. He will present to the government of Salvador the claim of Pennypacker against that government.

AT THE POKER TABLE

The Silver Senators Got their Training and Can't Be Tired Out.

New York, Oct. 16.—A morning paper has the following: Senator Watson G. Squire, of Washington state, and ex-Senator Wilbur F. Saunders, of Montana, arrived from Washington yesterday. Ex-Senator Saunders declared that in his judgment unconditional repeal of the Sherman act was dead. He believed that a compromise would be agreed upon this week, incorporating the best features of the Harris, Finkler and Blackburn bills.

While Mr. Saunders was chatting Col. Thomas P. Oehlrich walked into the fifth avenue hotel. Catching sight of the Montana man he exclaimed: "Ah, senator, I see my old friends in the senate are standing by their guns. What a horrible mistake on their part made when they counted on tiring out the silver senators. Why, Ed. Wolcott and Santa Claus Stewart and Jones and the rest of them were never known to go to bed until six or seven o'clock a. m. I've played poker with them for 24 hours at a stretch, and then you had to keep your eye peeled or they would freeze you out. I tell you when you put that crowd to sleep you have undertaken the biggest job a man ever had on his hands. 'I'll bet on that poker crowd every trip.'"

"I guess you are right, colonel," replied Senator Saunders, who knows a little about the game himself. "Wolcott never sleeps, and, as for Jones, I believe he can go a year without winking."

A LIVELY TIME

Expected During the Visit of the British Fleet at Taranto.

TARANTO, Oct. 16.—This city and seaport now presents a most animated scene in expectation of the arrival today of the British Mediterranean squadron, which reaches this port during the day, in spite of untrustworthy reports that the visit would not take place. Consequently the inhabitants of this seaport and neighborhood are preparing for five days of elaborate festivities, as the British squadron will remain here until the 20th. After leaving this port Great Britain's war vessels will go to Spezzia, where they will remain until October 26. That the Italians regard the visit of the British squadron to Taranto as a counter demonstration to the visit of the Russian fleet to Toulon is as evident as the fact that the French look upon the presence of the Russian warships in their waters as an intimation upon the part of the Czar that he will support France against the dreadnought in the event of a European war.

On the other hand, Great Britain may not officially intend that the visit of her war ships to Italy should be regarded as a counter move to the Russian display at Toulon, but there is no doubt that it is so regarded everywhere.

VERAGUA AT HOME.

Columbus's Descendant Delighted With the Reception He Got Here.

MADRID, Oct. 16.—The duke of Veragua with his family has returned here from his visit to the United States, after having stayed for some months at San Sebastian. The duke is eloquent in praise of the reception given him by the great American people. He says his ancestor, Columbus, could never have imagined that such a great nation as the North Americans would ever have flourished in the lands he had discovered across the Atlantic; that the highest state of civilization should exist in the new world where Columbus found only savages.

The duke considers himself fortunate in having accepted the invitation of the United States, as through the generosity of that great people, and out of gratitude to the family of Columbus for his discovery of the new world (from which event the United States have been the principal gainers), the dilapidated fortunes of the descendants of Columbus are likely to be repaired.

German Cool and Composed.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Berlin correspondent of the Times telegraphs as follows: "Two years ago the visit of the French fleet to Cronstadt caused Germany a spasm of anxiety; now since the passage of the new army bills Germany watch Toulon with the utmost confidence and composure, although it is felt that the chief bond between France and Russia is a common hatred of Germany. The same correspondent adds that the German press continues to show perfect self-control and reserve."

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

Poor Appetite, With Violent Pains and Nausea After Eating.

A Case That is of Interest to Every One Who Suffers From Indigestion, Terrible Suffering Night and Day.

Last week Drs. Copeland, Bell and Davis published the symptoms of catarrh as it often affects the entire system. This week they present the symptoms which are principally confined to the local affection commonly known as dyspepsia or catarrh of the stomach and bowels. These symptoms not only vary, in different individuals, but in the same individual at different times; the most constant is an abnormal appetite; it may be lost, increased or perverted. There is weight, dull pain and a sense of burning in the pit of the stomach after taking food, accompanied by flatulence, heartburn, gastritis, constipation or diarrhoea, a dull headache, languor, depression of spirits and irritability of temper.

Indigestion in eating and drinking, and exercise or exposure in dyspepsia are apt to occasion sick headache. It is frequently accompanied by bitter taste in the mouth, bilious vomiting and sluggish bowels; this is called bilious attack. There is frequent regurgitation of a thin, watery saline fluid, preceded by epigastric pains.

Sometimes there is pain at the heart, accompanied by palpitation and shortness of breath, making the patient think he has the heart disease.

Accompanying some cases there is dizziness, ringing in the ears, spots before the eyes, and other sensations which together are called "stomachic vertigo." These patients hear a buzzing sound and feel as if a vapor were enveloping them; they grow pale, and grasp for support through fear of falling.

When in any case "indigestion" has lasted a long time chronic catarrh will always be developed; evidences of malnutrition show themselves by anemic, premature old age, corrugations of the nails, decay of the teeth, etc. Again, there is a short, dry cough and occasional paroxysms of an asthmatic character. The skin becomes sallow, dry and rough, and various eruptions appear.

In the treatment of dyspepsia or gastric catarrh, as in other catarrhal diseases, Drs. Copeland, Bell and Davis' method is superior to all others. They readily distinguish between the various forms of its appearance, and direct their treatment to the removal of the cause.

Catarrh attacks all Mucous Membranes. It affects the Ears, Eyes, Nose, Throat, Bronchial Tubes, Lungs, Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys, Bladder—the whole mucous tract. Cure diseases of these organs by removing the cause.

Drs. Copeland, Bell & Davis treat successfully all curable diseases, at 1121 Main street, Wheeling, W. Va. Office hours, 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m., and 7 to 9 p. m. Sundays, 10 to 12 a. m., and 2 to 4 p. m. Specialties—Catarrh and all diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat; dyspepsia, chronic nervous diseases cured; skin diseases cured.
